

GAINS MADE BY GERMAN NOT SERIOUS

EXPERIENCE SHOWS THAT INITIAL SUCCESSES HAVE BEEN FOLLOWED BY PAUSES OF IMPOTENCE.

FIGHTING IS CONTINUED

GERMANS HAVE DONE BETTER, HOWEVER, THAN THEY EXPECTED—IS NOT TREATED SERIOUSLY BY LEADERS.

London, May 29.—Several of the morning newspapers, with comment on the battle of the Alsne sector. Others, while admitting the Germans have gained a substantial initial success, deplore any idea of treating the advance as anything more than a tactical success. They pointed out that similar thrusts have not been followed by continuous successes.

The Daily Chronicle fears the advance has involved a big loss in guns, but that in other respects it need not cause alarm. The paper adds that the country is so difficult that General Foch's reserves should have time to intervene before the strategic situation is altered seriously to the detriment of the allies. The Germans, however, have probably done better than they expected, although their achievement does go beyond undoing the effect of last year's French victory.

The German success had been won two months ago, says the Daily Graphic, "they would have created a widespread feeling of alarm. Experience, however, has shown initial successes recently have been followed by pauses of impotence. Consequently we are able, without making light of the advance, to regard it calmly."

The Times sees the indication that the whole line which the Germans assaulted was manned slightly, and thought it clear the retirement was a deliberate outcome of a tactical success. It made swiftly in view of the formidable character of the onslaught.

Official Statement.
The statement follows: "We carried out a successful raid last night southeast of Arras and captured three machine guns. A few prisoners were taken by us also during the night west of Merville. A raid attempted by the enemy at Giverny-Les-Basses was repulsed. An attack upon one of our posts south of the Ypres-Lomme line also was repulsed after sharp fighting. Hostile artillery has been active north of Albert in the neighborhood of Ayeles, each of Robecq and northwest of Merville, and has shown somewhat increased activity locally east of Arras and south of Lens."

French Are Gaining.
Paris, May 29.—General Foch now has the situation in hand, and the German forces are beginning to gain on the German forces. No important line of communication is threatened by the advance of the German forces. After forty-eight hours will see the German drive stopped. High praise is given the French reserves for the perfect order in which the French reserve came into action. The least encouraging news was the brilliant success of the Americans which all the newspapers featured. It was the first important battle of the Americans. All reports agree that they acted like veterans.

Slight Progress.
With French army, May 29.—The German offensive made only slight progress today. Seeing the heavy masses opposed to them, the Germans gave way and the flanks crossed the Alsne.

Artillery Active.
London, May 29.—The artillery is active north of Albert in the Flanders sector east of Robecq and south of Lens.

With the American line now runs 150 to 200 yards east of Campigny as a result of a successful attack today. The German line is still in the same position.

French Hold Strong.
With the French, May 29.—The allied command perceived when the French began their resistance on the night of May 28 that a withdrawal toward strong positions. The enemy found both tanks were holding.

The Germans pushed forward as far as possible, but the Allies gave way fighting hard, both the French and British fought with wonderful unnumbered ten to one.

French Fall Back.
Paris, May 29.—The French troops have fallen back to the eastern outskirts of Soissons, where the battle continues with bitterness. The French were ordered to fall back to the heights south and southeast of St. Thierry, where they are holding position between the Alsne and the Alsne canal.

ATTACK SLOWS UP.—The German attack across the Alsne is slowing down as the British troops begin counter attacks and French reserves are rushing in to stem the enemy advance.

DISPERATE FIGHTING.—Around Esmer about half way between Soissons and Rheims a desperate battle is being fought. Berlin claims that they have crossed the Alsne river, but that the French are holding stubbornly, waiting for the reserves to come up. The British are committing an important position south of St. Thierry north and west of the town of St. Thierry. French troops on the left have stopped Hun onrushes by counter attacks. Heavy fighting continues along the front from south of St. Thierry to almost north of Rheims.

TAKE MANY PRISONERS.—Large numbers enabled the Germans to penetrate the allied lines beyond the Alsne and villages and 10,000 prisoners. The greatest advance was made in the center. As in the offensive in Flanders, the form of a blunt-nosed wedge with its apex less than three miles in width between Broches and Vassines.

LINE NOT WIDENED.—Notwithstanding their success in pushing the allies from Chemin des Dames the enemy has not succeeded in widening the line near Montdidier or in changing the line east of Rheims. Direct con-

Italians Rout Enemy After Forty Hours' Battle In Mountains

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Italian army headquarters, May 29.—The most extensive mountain operations since the beginning of the war were carried out by the Italians in the Ponale region north-west of Trent early this week, particulars regarding which are now being received. The basin of Fressina lake was captured by Italian Alpine after forty hours of fierce fighting against a numerically superior enemy. The great Fressina mountain was reached by the Alpine after attacking four times under heavy fire. The enemy was finally overwhelmed by a bayonet drive. The ground was hard and slippery with late spring snow. The Italians advanced up steep ascents, down precipices and over glaciers.

munication has been broken by the enemy, neither of these hills EXPECT HAIR.—Observers assert that the Germans will have time to push. The French reserves are moving well in a hurry and General Foch has the situation well in hand.

AMERICANS STOP PUSH.—The Americans have the situation well in hand in Picardy and have won a decisive battle. Heavy losses were inflicted on the Germans and the Americans suffered small.

CAPTURE VILLAGE.—In the capture of their first town from the Germans the Americans completed the operation in less than half an hour. German counter attacks were broken up by Americans.

On the other American sector there has been patrol and artillery activity. East of Lunelville Germans briefly have been destroyed by artillery fire.

ARTILLERY FIRE STRONG.—French and British troops have completely restored the situation in Flanders. The German line has been driven back near Disbusch lake. In Picardy along the western front there has been no change. The artillery fire is strong.

Report Capture Of American Doctors By German Forces

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Amsterdam, May 29.—A West Bureau telegram filed in Berlin on Tuesday giving an account of the fighting along the Chemin des Dames. It mentioned that among the prisoners taken from the British were a number of American doctors.

Washington, May 29.—Another tentative of German control in American industry has been severed by A. Mitchell Palmer, the alien property custodian.

Under arrangements now being completed between the custodian and the Fur Merchants' Credit association of New York City, the interests of the German fur barons of Leipzig will be purchased by American merchants and the money paid turned into the United States treasury to be held until the end of the war for the Germans involved.

In announcing today the forced retirement of German interests in the industry, Mr. Palmer said even rough estimates of the enemy holdings can be made up. The fur dealers have reported balances due the Germans.

"It may be stated, however," said the custodian, "that the negotiations have been completed and that the last German dollar invested in the fur business in this country, turn over to the American furriers and establish a great new industry here in America."

"Some of the larger firms which have already readjusted their holdings under the agreement of the government are the Theodore, Thorer company, Gaudig & Blum and M. S. Elias, Jr., Inc., among the best known. The fur houses on this side of the Atlantic, many others are in process of readjustment, including Otto Eriker company, Fuchs & Company, Inc., and Eisenbach Brothers."

Before the war the trade of American furriers was practically nothing but a collecting and shipping agency for the Germans. Almost every pelts taken by American trappers had to go to Leipzig before it could be sold. Leipzig dressers and dyers were the best in the world. None could compete with them. Although London was the world's market by reason of the punier work of the old Hudson Bay Company and far-sighted English commission houses, three quarters of the fur trade shipped to London from America, Russia and even China went after the auctions, direct to Leipzig for dressing and dyeing."

"Win The War Is Our One Grand Duty" Says Theodore Roosevelt

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Milwaukee, May 29.—"We have got on again today, to carrying the war through to a knockout," said Col. Roosevelt in speaking here at a theatre this afternoon.

"All the movements must be directed to one purpose, that of having the men at the front to win the war. What we can do now is to put our strength behind the men at the front."

He stated he was glad that some pacifists did not keep the nation out of war. "If three years ago our people had been prepared, there would have been no war by this time. Our duty now is to win and profit by our errors. We are getting our troops over there, and don't say we are going to do it, but do it."

The war, he said, would settle there is to be but one flag in this country and that it will be red or black. Col. Roosevelt said this country was no place for a fifty-fifty American.

He made a special appeal to mothers, the people of German birth, whose children are growing up here, to bring them up as Americans. He said it was a mistake to send them any place but the United States to get educated.

In languages, he stated, should not be taught in public or private schools and also advocated the publishing of newspapers in English. Col. Roosevelt received a delegation of the Milwaukee branch of the national women's party at his hotel and made a statement to the effect that he was doing all he could to secure the passage of the national suffrage amendment.

Berlin Newspapers Apparently Told To Cut War Enthusiasm

London, May 29.—Berlin newspapers apparently have been given orders to tone down their war enthusiasm. An Amsterdam correspondent on German comment on Monday's fighting along the Alsne. The tone of the papers was said to be: "Our new success shows us again how justified is our confidence in our great leader. It would be premature to draw final conclusions from the success of the German people to know its confidence in the spirit of the troops can never be disappointed."

CASUALTY LIST SHOWS FIVE KILLED IN ACTION

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, May 29.—The army casualty list contained thirty names divided as follows: Killed in action, five; died of disease, five; died of wounds, one; wounded, ten; wounded slightly, seven; missing in action, two. Not any from Wisconsin.

SIXTEEN PERISH IN FIRE; FIVE INJURED

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Columbus, S. C., May 29.—Fire early today destroyed a ward of the state hospital of insane and sixteen were burned to death. Five were badly injured, of which one died.

The ward devoted to idiots and the mentally defective contains 46 patients of whom 34 have been accounted for early today. Some of the patients have rushed into the burning building after having been taken out. The fire is believed to have been caused by defective electric wiring.

HOARDS FOOD STUFFS IN HOME; INDICTED

Washington, May 29.—Francis V. Nash, a medical doctor in the navy, and his wife were indicted on a charge of hoarding food stuff. Investigators found more than a ton of sugar in their home.

BOLSHEVIKI PROTEST AGAINST SUGGESTION

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Moscow, May 29.—The press is giving the bolshheviks of attention to the suggestion for allied intervention in Russia and Burgoise as well as Bolshhevik newspapers are unanimous in expressing opposition to the suggestion. The bolshheviks of Siberia would not be disadvantageous for the Germans and might turn out badly for Russia.

SHIPPERS WILL ASK COMMISSION TO MAKE LOCAL RATE CHANGES

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Madison, Wis., May 29.—Shippers are waking up to the effect of the new freight and passenger order issued by the federal government, which becomes effective as of June 10 and as per far as freight charges on June 10. From present indications shippers of the state will hold a conference with the railroad commission to make changes in the schedules that will still give the government its needed increase, but restore to the localities rates suited to special conditions.

When the first news of the freight rate increase indicated that it was about 25 per cent, an analysis of the order shows that the order is now a general increase of all rates. Some of the shippers out in the state and the lumber interests, which were given special consideration by the decision of the Wisconsin railroad commission in the Tittmeier freight rate decision, will find that the benefits have been taken away. Jobbers in large cities like Milwaukee and Chicago are not so directly affected, as the Wisconsin freight rate structure was primarily constructed to build up industries all over the state.

Some of the states having two-cent fare laws have indicated that they may contest the validity of the order for a few hours this morning, but refused to make any comment, but said that he had the matter under consideration. It is probable that the shippers interested specifically in the lumber and dealing changes will ask for a conference with the state body mission and then have the state body put the matter before Mr. McAdoo. Some of the shippers are already taking steps to remedy the situation.

AMERICAN'S WERE EAGER FOR ATTACK

UNITED STATES TROOPS ANXIOUS TO GET WALLOP AT KAISER'S ARMY.

DISPLAY GREAT NERVE

Soldiers Started Across "No Man's Land" Singing and Telling Jokes.

With the American Army in France, May 29.—Many of the American soldiers who took part in the successful attack against the German line west of Montdidier today also participated in the repulse of the German raid against the American line Monday. One participant in Monday's affair is said to have been found today in a shell hole in No Man's Land with two wounded Germans as his prisoners.

Guarded Prisoners.

He was unable to get back to the American line Monday night so he stood guard over them until the attack this morning liberated them and secured the prisoners to the American line. Col. Wood of the 101st Infantry, said he did not see one American fall during today's attack. "It was more exciting than a football game," he added, "and we have got the Germans on the run. All we need is more Americans and then we shall lick them."

The Germans, it had been found, had many mortars and machine gun emplacements in Cantigny. America's first offensive blow was struck in a mist. The French tanks apparently did not move much to do as the American artillery already had prepared the way. A bright sun came out and shone on the Americans as they dug in, in their new position.

Sergeant Irving Wood started across "No Man's Land" there were many jokes about "eating Boche for breakfast."

Fought Like Veterans.
The Americans fought as though they were veterans and there was no hesitation when the officers shouted "Come on boys!"

Several officers describing the scene agreed that the offensive was a masterpiece of the men and their absolute confidence in themselves. The Germans poured machine gun bullets at the Americans and as they were attacking in, but no attention was paid to them as jokes and jests were handed back and forth.

Wounded Men.
The demeanor of the men wounded in action was remarkably cheerful when the correspondent visited the field hospital this afternoon. He said, stretched out on their cot a number of these Americans for the most part only slightly wounded acted as if they were not hurt at all. A school boy returned from a great day of sport, smoking cigarettes, eagerly relating their personal experiences and laughing and joking at the same time. Lieutenant George P. Butler, formerly attorney of Indianapolis, who was slightly wounded in the leg, said going over the top was like a maneuver. The men were eager for it and some of them remained in the trenches all night talking with cheerful anticipation of the approaching adventure.

When we reached Cantigny it was only a pile of brick and stone. Our artillery has leveled the town. The German machine gun bullets were buzzing about like bumble bees but followed when they were more in contention to them than if they had been confetti. It was the finest example of teamwork I ever saw. There was not a hitch anywhere. The men joked and laughed and joked in work. Lieutenant W. A. Bligh who also was slightly wounded, was brought to the hospital and placed on a cot adjoining that of Lieutenant Bligh. As they lay there they clasped hands and greeted each other like long lost brothers. "It was a great show billing," he said, "Gee, I wish the folks at home could have seen it. It wouldn't have missed it for anything."

Successful Advances.
Washington, May 29.—Reports of successful operations by American soldiers are told by the war department. Details of the actions are expected in the communiqué of General Pershing.

Additional Facts.
An addition to Pershing's communiqué for yesterday was given out by the war department reports that two German patrol attacks were repulsed by American troops. Lieutenant Beckenbacker downed another enemy machine.

High Ground.
The old German line from an angle which has now been traced out by the Americans have gained high ground. The American line included Bavarian boys and men between 45 and 60 and appear to be under the Germans were glad to not surrender and one stated that he did not want to fight but that he was forced to.

Republican Party Determined To Aid In Conduct Of War

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS)

Indianapolis, Ind., May 29.—Every action of the republican party in state and nation is to be determined solely by how it will aid most in winning the war.

This is the outstanding declaration of the republican statement of policy by National Republican chairman Will H. Hays on adoption this afternoon by the Indiana state republican convention.

To this end the party stands for this program:

First: To use every possible means to win the war.

Second: For peace with victory and never by a separate peace. Peace preparations now for peace after the war.

Charging that the party in power is guilty of practicing petty politics in the serious detriment of the country's cause, the chairman announced that partisan politics be taken out and kept out of the management.

Partisan criticism of the administration is strongly denounced, but constructive criticism, sympathetically offered is defended.

Only state officers ranking for secretary of state down are being nominated.

The platform drawn by Hays after conference with republican leaders all over the country, was adopted without change by the resolutions committee at a session lasting until early this morning.

Senator Harry S. New charged that the administration is playing politics and declared that a political propaganda is being carried on behind the slogan, "Vote for the president."

Mr. Creel with his bunch of socialists, muck-raking misfits is employing it in every form at his limited command. "The administration is playing politics," he said, "and is carrying on a propaganda in the name of the president."

"President Wilson, the Indiana senator characterized as 'the most astute leader the democratic party has ever had,' the shrewdest politician in the country, is playing politics in the name of the president."

June 5 Officially Named Registration Day by Gov. Philipp

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

The President of the United States has, pursuant to law, designated June 5, 1918, as Registration day under the selective service law for all male persons who have attained the age of twenty-one years since June 5, 1917.

The obligation to register is placed on all such male persons in the United States on June 5, 1918, whether citizens of the United States or not, who have taken out their first papers only, or aliens. Persons in the military or naval service of the United States are not required to register while they remain in such military or naval service, but are required to register immediately upon leaving it.

The place of registration is ordinarily the office of the local board, which has jurisdiction of the area wherein the persons required to register permanently reside. With-in the jurisdiction of the local board having an extensive area of poor railroad connections, additional places of registration will be established, and these will be announced in the public press.

Persons who are likely to be absent from their homes on June 5th and who cannot register with the local board having jurisdiction over their places of residence should present themselves at the earliest possible moment to any local board wherever they may be. The local board, standing in the place of the local board, should be notified by registered mail. There should be enclosed with the card a statement of the reasons for the delay in order that a registration certificate may be issued to the persons registering.

Special provisions have been made for the registration of the designated age who, on account of absence at sea, or on account of absence without their families, are unable to register at their homes or as provided for other absentees.

The places of registration are required to be open between the hours of 7 a. m. and 8 p. m. on June 5th next. But though the offices will be open during these hours, it is confidently expected that the registration will be completed before two o'clock in the afternoon. Every patriotic agency and all good citizens will co-operate with us in securing complete registration early on June 5th.

Wisconsin was the first state in the union to report its registration. Wisconsin reported that the report of the District of Columbia. It was a splendid indication of the willingness of the citizens of this state to pull together for a national purpose. It was only a beginning of the splendid response to the call of the state have given to the national government

Travel Literature and Official Guide

The Gazette Travel Bureau has just received several pieces of travel literature on the Pacific Northwest and Summer Outings in Wisconsin and Michigan which are free to those wishing them. While the railway time-tables are being changed so frequently "The Official Railway Guide" is the only reliable source of information as possible these times. The Official Guide, a book of more than fifteen hundred pages, is reprinted and corrected each month and contains the time-tables of every transportation line in this country. It also includes every station and indicates the lines of railway running into it. The Gazette Travel Bureau is a subscriber to the Railway Guide and its use is free to the public.

GERMANS IN U. S. CALLED IGNORANT BUT NOT DISLOYAL

Gov. Simon Bamberger.

Governor Bamberger of Utah, who is a native of Germany, is touring the country for the purpose of lining up fellow German-Americans on the side of the United States in the war. He says the vast majority of them are already patriotic Americans, and that those who are not are ignorant rather than disloyal.

JANESVILLE WILL HONOR SOLDIERS ON THURSDAY

MONSTER PARADE WILL BE HELD IN AFTERNOON FOLLOWED BY EXERCISES AT MYERS THEATRE

EXERCISES AT THEATRE

Rev. J. A. Melrose Will Give Address
Of Afternoon. High School Children Will Sing

Plans have been completed for the Memorial Day exercises to be held on tomorrow. In the morning the W. H. H. Post No. 1, G. A. R., Post No. 1, and Spanish American veterans with their auxiliaries, will meet at the East Side Odd Fellows' Hall, at eight o'clock, prepared to go to the cemetery to decorate the graves of their departed comrades. A ring squad from Co. G, 8th Regiment, U. S. G., under Sergeant Haumerson and Corporal Lovejoy, will also go to the cemetery. Citizens will furnish automobiles for transportation.

At 10 o'clock, a monster patriotic parade will be held. It is requested that the societies report at the corner of North Main and 1st streets. The parade will form as follows: Police; Bowler City Band; Co. G, 8th Regiment; W. H. H. Post No. 1; High School Cadets; Boy Scouts; Other societies; Automobiles containing war veterans; Harry Gifford Camp Spanish War Veterans; W. H. Sargent Post No. 1; G. A. R. Post No. 1.

C. H. Cox will be Marshall, and will have full charge of the parade. The line of march will be West on Milwaukee street to Academy street, and then returning to the Myers Theatre. A very interesting and patriotic program has been arranged for the afternoon at the Myers Theatre. There will be music, singing, and Rev. J. A. Melrose will give the address. The high school children, under the direction of Miss Sewell, will render several patriotic songs. The program follows: Music by Bowler City Band; Invocation, Rev. Henry Williamson; Song exercises by school children under leadership of Miss Sewell; Song, Robert Dalley; Reading of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, Conrad C. Viner; Song, Miss Clara Shaw; Song, John A. Logan; First Memorial Day Order, S. C. Burnham; Address, Rev. J. A. Melrose; America, Audience; Benediction.

MODEL PHILIPPINO HOUSE AT LIBRARY

Franklin Palat Made an Exact Replica of the Houses Used in the Philippines; Clever Workmanship Illustrated.

Simplicity itself. This is the verdict of all who saw the model Philippine thatched roof house, which was recently brought to the library by Franklin Palat, the young Igorotte who is attending the Janesville High school. The model at the library is an exact replica of the rural homes in the Philippines.

The Philippine housewife unlike the American has no annual spring house-cleaning worries as the home is divided into two rooms with a sort of platform as storage room suspended from the roof. The kitchen is a small compartment which seems to have been hung on the side of the house, looking like an American storm shed. Franklin Palat stated that the square room is occasionally subdivided into three rooms. But the chief claims, to simplicity are the walls or rather the lack of them. For the house has only half of a wooden wall of boards around it. The beauty of its simplicity lies chiefly in the greenish-brown thatched roof, which sheds the frequent rains of that country. The grass for the model in the library was cut at Spring Brook and died to get the correct color, this spring.

MISS ESTHER HELGESON WEDS HENRY T. TAYLOR

A simple but impressive wedding was solemnized on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock when Miss Esther Helgeson became the bride of Henry T. Taylor at the Taylor farm on Milton road.

The young couple took their place to the strains of Lohengrin wedding march, played by Mrs. F. T. Richards. Rev. F. Lewis performed the ceremony before a large gathering of friends and relatives. H. P. Goodman of Whitewater rendered two solos.

After the ceremony, a wedding luncheon was served at the home of the bride. The house was beautifully decorated. The bride is well known in this city where she has lived for many years. She has been a registered nurse for several years. The groom has farming interests in the town of Harmony and is well known in this city. They will be at home to their many friends on Saturday June 1st at the farm on Milton road.

"In all probability work on the construction of the concrete highway between Beloit and Janesville will not be commenced this year and it is very doubtful whether it will be begun until the war is over," said County Superintendent of Highways Chas. E. Moore in an interview this morning. "The authorities at Washington have not yet announced their approval of the plans and specifications for the proposed trunk line highway and it is highly probable that their ultimate approval will be qualified with the condition that the work be suspended until hostilities are over."

It was originally planned by the county board to construct four miles of the 16-ft. wide concrete highway this year, keeping the Fairbanks Highway Company's switch in Beloit and extending in a northerly direction along the river for four miles. Upon Moore with the co-operation of the state highway commission at Madison, immediately commenced drawing up the plans and specifications for the project. Owing to the fact that the county board have enlisted in the engineering corps of the army, the force at their disposal is now, badly crippled and it required several weeks to complete the plans.

Oil on "Troubled Waters."

The experiment on a large scale on smoothing water by means of oil was first made at Peterhead, England, by John Shields, 36 years ago. A force pump with 1,200 feet of lead and iron pipe was used to throw the oil upon the waves at the harbor's mouth. Although the sea was running high it became smooth as soon as the pump began to "pour oil upon the troubled waters."

REACH SETTLEMENT IN CASES AGAINST KEE AND CHAPPELL CO.

Eleven Cases Against Dairy Company
Are Dismissed After Agreement Is Reached Between Attorneys.

All eleven cases begun against the Kee and Chappell dairy company by milk producers living in the vicinity of Janesville, when the city was the result of an agreement reached late yesterday afternoon between the contesting attorneys. Ten cases were to be tried in the municipal court, and one had been appealed to the circuit court after judgment had been rendered against the dairy company by Judge Maxfield in the municipal court. The agreement was reached after a committee of citizens headed by John E. Kennedy had solicited the funds to pay the farmers for the sums involved in the cases. When the total difference between the prices given by the dairy company to the producers, and the commission was figured, it was found that only $23.81 was involved. With the acceptance of a compromise price of $2.72 1/2 per hundred pounds for the March milk and $2.47 1/2 for the April milk the citizens raised the $116.92 to pay the producers.

Although the cases involved about thirty-five hundred dollars for milk delivered the controversy arose as the producers refused to accept the list of prices offered by the dairy company. The compromise price offered some time ago was favorable to the producers in this vicinity but the Milton producers refused to accept it. Under the terms of the agreement the defendants are to pay the court costs and the plaintiffs must pay their attorneys' fees for carrying on the civil action. Announcement has been made that the Kee and Chappell company will continue to take the milk of all the present producers in the city. The present prices for May and $1.30 for June, the prices set by the commission. According to officials of the local plant there are forty-three of the disputed milk cans being put ready to deliver milk to the local concern. The agreement was reached before the case of W. S. Agnew and Emil Luecke versus the Kee and Chappell company, which was being tried in the municipal court yesterday, had gone to the six man jury. The testimony had been taken but with the announcement of the acceptance of the compromise the case was dropped. Previous to that time it had been planned to try one case a day until all had been decided.

WILL DEDICATE FLAG SATURDAY AFTERNOON

With appropriate exercises a beautiful American flag measuring eighteen by twenty-two feet will be dedicated on the lawn south of the Chicago & Northwestern passenger depot Saturday afternoon at two-thirty. Arrangements for the occasion have not been finished but the complete program will be announced tomorrow or Friday. The flag was purchased by the station employees and trainmen.

U. S. Red Cross Nurses Cheer Poilus As They Enter Battle During Drive

*For five days these women stood there and gave encouragement and food to the French soldiers.

Elliot Wadsworth of Boston, now the active chairman of the executive committee of the Red Cross, who has just returned from Europe, gives this account of the gift and heroism of American Red Cross workers in France:

"The Red Cross has units at Ham, Noyon and Noyon, and Jim Perkins and I started off to see if those units had got out. We went to Compiègne and about twenty miles south began to meet refugees. We went on to Compiègne and saw the remnants of the British army coming out and at the same time the French going in.

"We couldn't find anything there, and went on to Lassigny. Again we found the British army coming out, but we could not find our unit there, but we found it at Montdidier. They had got out of Ham just before the Hun came in. Jackson, who was in charge of it, was the last man over the bridge just before they dynamited it, and he had been carrying British wounded all that day in a big caisson.

"It was a Smith college unit, and the women that came out had set up a canteen and were taking care of the refugees with the supplies they had brought out five days at Ham.

"The next morning, the first thing, we went to Compiègne. A great field kitchen, a squad of men and a number of women, who were nursing in one of the hospitals which had been evacuated. We added some others, and for five days those women stood there at the bridge at Compiègne and gave encouragement and food to the French soldiers that were going in. It was probably the most wonderful

CENTER

Center, May 27.—The crop prospect was never more encouraging than at this time. The rains, sun and frequent showers is what we want.

The body of the late Addie B. Lynn, who passed away in February and was placed in the Beloit city vault, was removed to Center Sunday afternoon and interred in the family lot beside her father and mother who had preceded her. The funeral services were held at the home of the deceased, Mrs. C. E. Fisher, at 10 o'clock Sunday morning. Rev. I. R. Spencer of Footville who is in failing health, but came by request of the sisters of the deceased.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Rosa and Roy Davis were Mr. Atkinson visitors Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Stewart of Janesville spent Sunday at the home of their daughter, Mrs. C. E. Fisher and family.

Mrs. Fred Grance and children came to Center Sunday to attend the burial of her aunt. She remained for a day or two, returning to her home in Beloit Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Brown were Footville visitors Sunday at the parental home of the latter.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Davis entertained the latter's brother, Will Wright and family of Janesville Sunday. Also Edward Wright, a nephew of Mr. Davis and son of John Wright of Milton, who is an alternate in the contingent which left Janesville for Camp Grant Monday.

Miss Florence Davis of Footville spent Saturday in Janesville assisting to correct the rural students diploma papers.

Mrs. Christ Zickert, daughter of Miss Ethel and other relatives of Beloit were visitors at Bethel cemetery Sunday.

J. P. Goldsmith was an over Sunday visitor at Nelville, Wis., at the George Poppe home. His niece, Mrs. Beatrice Poppe, a former Center girl, graduated from the high school there Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Fisher were Sunday visitors at their son Charlie's home south of Footville.

Fred Tripke spent the past week in Milwaukee where he went to consult an eye specialist and be operated on for cataracts.

School closed Friday in District No. 2, Miss Kate Crail, teacher and pupils enjoying a picnic supper.

Mrs. Mae Fuller made a brief visit in Beloit last Tuesday.

Messrs and Mesdames Chas. Ferguson, Calvin Ferguson and R. O. Shaw and Miss Maile Shaw, accompanied the remains of their sister and aunt to Center Sunday.

Mesdames Peter Reid of the town of Janesville and Edson Brown of East Center whose natal day occurs on the 24th and 25th of May respectively, thought to make the day memorable, decided to celebrate at the home of Mrs. Brown. Beside the immediate families, Miss Dolph, Mrs. James Roberts and Mr. and Mrs. Knudson of Janesville were invited to join in the festivities of the occasion. The hostess served delicious refreshments. Two beautiful birthday cakes were in evidence lighted with "mimosa" candles, each lady receiving several tokens of remembrance with best wishes for many happy returns of the happy days gone by.

Miss Ivy Dolph returned to her home at Brookfield last Saturday afternoon, closing her school Friday. She gave excellent satisfaction and the school board are desirous of her return for another year.

"Good-bye, Pete; good bye pinnie," said Colonel St. Ledger to a negro and his wife who were about to be taken on board a steamer at Vicksburg, in 1810. "I hope you will get a good master. I was about to give you your freedom when this blow fell upon me. The law takes you out of my hands and I have no power to make you free. The colonel who had a heart as big as an ox had endorsed a note to save a friend from bankruptcy, and thereby become a bankrupt himself.

"We know dat Marse Colonel," said the woman. "Don't yo' worry yo'self about dat; you couldn't help it."

The slaves were taken aboard the boat which was bound for New Orleans, showing blessings on their old master, but as soon as they were off on their journey southward they began to bewail their probable coming separation; for they would doubtless be sold to different masters.

In those days the steamers plying on the Mississippi river were infested with gamblers. In the cabin of the steamer on which these slaves were taken, were half a dozen tables around which sat card players with chips or money stacked up before them. A man whose serious mind marked him for a clergyman, went to one of the tables and said to those playing:

"Gentlemen, there are a couple of slaves on this boat, a man and his wife, who are going to New Orleans to be sold, quite likely, separately. It has been suggested to me that a game of 'freeze out' be played for them—whatever that may be—the winner to give them their freedom. Will someone please tell me what is a 'freeze out'?"

"What this plan is that has been suggested to you, sir," said one of the gamblers, "is to sell chips to the amount of the price the owner puts on his slaves, and the chip holders play a game of poker till one of them owns all the chips. He then buys the slaves and sets them free."

Several of the players at the table bought chips, and the clergyman went to other tables and induced others to buy. But when he had got in all he could it was only half enough. The owners of the negroes wanted $1,000 for the two, and chips only to the value of $900 could be sold.

"Friend," said the clergyman, "all the money I have in the world is seven hundred dollars. I will buy the rest of the chips if anyone knows how to play this game of poker will play for me."

"You needn't take all the unsold chips, parson," said the owner of the slaves. "I'll divide it with you. I'll take half; you take the other half."

The game was arranged but there was trouble in finding anyone to play for the parson. He would not commit the interest to any professional gambler of which class he professed a horror; and no one else would accept the responsibility of playing for him.

"Gentlemen," he said at last, "the Lord will play for me. I know nothing of the game, but in such a cause the Lord will send me luck with enough of the element of luck, I will need no skill."

The chip holders took a table and the game began. It was a slow proceeding, for everything must be explained to the parson. He neither won nor lost for a time, but one by one the players lost all the chips they had bought except the owner of the slaves and the clergyman. The former desiring to hasten the winning of the parson's chips proposed a jack pot. When a jack pot was explained to the parson he acceded to it and after considerable enlargement of the pile on the table his opponent opened it. The parson won on three kings, the other showing three knaves.

They played on with various success till the parson laid his cards on the table face down, and asked which was the higher hand; three kings or a queen and four deuces. When told that four deuces beat the kings he seemed surprised. But he took up his hand and, after a profound study of it, put fifty dollars in the pot. His opponent raised him. He raised his opponent and the raising went on till all the chips were on the table. The cards were turned over.

"Is that what you call a royal flush?" asked the parson looking up from his cards, showing four aces and a king. There was a clapping of hands among the lookers-on. The slave owner had been frozen out.

The clergyman made out free papers for the slaves.

"Who is that man?" asked the slave owner. "I think there is something wrong about him."

"Something wrong and something right," replied a bystander. "He's a notorious card sharp, but he's given his money and his skill to free a couple of slaves."

Period Styles.

Often one hears persons who know little or nothing of period styles boasting of the fact and insisting that such things are of no consequence to them, since all that they want is "a cosy, comfortable, homelike room." But let them set out to accomplish this end by buying in haphazard manner whatever things happen to take their eye or please their fancy and it will not be long before they have learned that it is no more possible to make a harmonious room without studying more than mere color harmonies than it is possible to make an enjoyable week-end party without inviting naturally congenial guests.

A Sufferer of Broken Hearts.

In the old Franciscan church of the Holy Cross rises one of the two monuments disdaining Florence condensed to give her greatest poet, whose greatest honor lies in his gift to the world at one splendid sweep of a pure and recreated Italian language—until his time halting and feeble—in that immortal masterpiece of literature, the "Divina Commedia."

This church might well be known as the Broken Hearts church of Santa Croce, for near Dante's cenotaph—his exiled ashes still rest in Ravenna—lies the body of that other terrific genius, Michelangelo, who, broken in spirit, died gladly when the city so dear to his heart fell once more upon dark and tyrannous days. And Galilei is here, too, and Alderi, and Machiavelli, and many another, a brilliant train.

Michelangelo's last work is in the nearby church of San Lorenzo, in the mortuary chapel of the Medici, the great house which deigned to favor him with its patronage or its enmity throughout his life.—National Geographic Magazine.

His Epitaph.

A recent automobile accident in an upstate county resulted in the death of the driver and the injury of two passengers.

The coroner summoned several witnesses, among them a farmer living near the scene of the accident. There was voluminous testimony regarding the high speed at which the car traveled. Witnesses said, too, that the road was in bad repair. The coroner finally reached the farmer who lived near the scene.

"What would you say about this accident, Mr. Swiggert?" the coroner asked.

"Well, if I was writin' that young man's epitaph," the witness drawled, "I'd say he died tryin' to git sixty miles an hour out of a ten mile road."

A Famous Dresser.

Joachim Murat was in his day the best dressed man in the world. Born in 1767 in a village near Cahors the son of a day laborer, he was sent to a Jesuit school to be educated for the priesthood. He ran away, joined the army, and sixteen years after he had become a lieutenant he was a field marshal, duke of Cleves and Berg, with Napoleon's sister, Caroline, as his wife, and finally, by the grace of his brother-in-law, was created king of Naples. In all stations he paid the closest attention to his attire and wore, in battle, gold embroidered and jeweled uniforms which would have made him conspicuous at a court function, and dressed himself as for a review when he was led forth to be shot.—New York Tribune.

Why should he spend a week of his shortening life with such inferior things, just for Abraham's sake—for Abraham's sake, and to bear out a theory of his own, which he had already concluded a mistake?

Abe gave a snort, opened his eyes, and muttered sleepily: "This is what

I call a No. 1 spree. Now, terror-

But mumbling incoherently he relapsed into slumber, puffing his lips out into a whistling sound.

Samuel reached for a newspaper on the table, folded it into a missile, and started to fling it into the innocent face of the sleeper. But fortunately for Abraham, it was Captain Darby's custom to count ten whenever seized by an exasperated impulse, and at the tenth number he regretfully dropped the paper.

Then he began to count in another way. Using the forefinger of his right hand as a marker, he counted under his breath, "one" on his left thumb, then after a tiring interval, "two" on his left forefinger, "three" on the middle digit, and so on, giving time for thought to each number, until he had exhausted the fingers of his left hand and was ready to start on the right.

Count, count, went on Samuel, until thrice five was passed, and he began to be confused.

Once more Abe awoke, and inquired if the other were trying to reckon the number of new wigwags and signals which the service had acquired since they had worked for the government;

but on being sharply told to "Shut up!" went to sleep again.

What the projector of the trip was really trying to recall was how many times that day he had regretted saving Abe from the devastating clutches of the old ladies.

"Him need hardenin'?" muttered

Samuel blackly. "Why, he's harder

now 'n nails an' hardtack!"

Again he ran over on his fingers the list of high crimes and misdemeanors of which Abe had been guilty.

First—thumb, left hand—Abe had insisted on extending their scooter sail until he, Samuel, had felt his toes freezing in his boots.

Second—forefinger, left hand—on being welcomed by the entire force at Black Hill and asked how long they expected to stay, Abe had blurted out,

"A hull week," explaining that Samu-el's rule requiring at least seven days of exile from his wife every six months barred them from returning in less time.

The keeper was a widower, all the other men were bachelors. How could they be expected to understand? They burst into a guffaw of laughter, and Abe, not even conscious that he had betrayed a sacred confidence, sputtered and laughed with the rest.

Samuel had half a mind to return tomorrow, "jest to spite 'em." Let's see, how many days of this plagued week were left? Six. Six whole twenty-four hours away from Blossy and his snug, warm, comfortable nest.

She wasn't used to keepin' house by herself, neither. Would she remember to wind the clock on Thursday, and feed the canary, and water the abandon and begonias reglar?

Grinly Samuel took up offense No.

6. Abraham had further told the men that he had been brought over here for a hardening process; but he was willing to bet that if Samuel could keep up with him, he could keep up with Samuel.

Then followed offense on offense.

Was Samuel to be outdone on his own one-time field of action, by an old ladies' darling? No!

When Abe sat for a half-hour in the lookout, up in the freezing, cold cup-pole, and did duty "jest to be smart,"

Samuel sat there on top of his own feet, too.

When Abe helped drag out the apparatus cart over the heavy sands for the drill, Samuel helped, too. And how tugging at that rope brought back his lumbago!

When Abe rode in the breeches-buoy, Samuel insisted on playing the sole survivor of a shipwreck, too, and went climbing stiffly and lumberingly up the practice mast.

Abraham refused to take a nap after dinner; so did Samuel. Abe went down to the outdoor carpenter shop in the grove and planned a board just for the love of exertion. Samuel planned two boards and drove a nail.

"We've got two schoolboys with us," said the keeper and the crew.

"Ef I'd a-knowed that yew had more lives 'n my Maltese cat," Samuel was muttering over Abe by this time,

"T'd—"

Count, count, went Captain Darby's fingers. He heard the keeper rattling papers in the office just across the threshold, heard him say he was about to "turn in," and guessed Samuel had better do likewise; but Samuel kept on counting.

Count, count, went the arraigning fingers. Gradually he grew drowsy, but still he went over and over poor

Abe's offenses, counting on until of a sudden he realized that he was no longer numbering the sins of his companion; he was measuring in minutes the time he must spend away from Blossy and Twin Coves, and the begonias and the canary and the cat.

What would Blossy say if she could feel the temperature of the room, in which he was supposed to sleep? What would Blossy say if she knew how his back ached? Whatever would Blossy do to Abe Rose if she could suspect how he had tucked out her "old man?"

"He's a reglar boss," brooded Samuel. "Oh, my feet!" grabbing at his right boot. "I'll bet yer all I got it's them air chilblains. That's what," he added, unconsciously speaking aloud.

Abe's lids slowly lifted. He rubbed his eyes and yawned. He turned his head on his hard, blue gingham-covered pillow, and stared sleepily at the other.

"Yew been noddin', Sam? An' a-gittin' sleepy already, are yer?" He glanced at the clock. "Why, I's only half-past nine. Say, what's the matter with an' yew golt' west ter meet

No. 5? Lettie breath o' fresh air'll make us sleep splendid."

He started up from the couch, but dropped back, too heavy with weariness to carry off his bravado. Samuel, however, not noticing the discrepancy between speech and action, was already at the door leading upstairs.

"Yew don't drag me out o' this station tonight, Abe Rose. Yew're a reglar boss; that's what yew be. A reglar boss! A reglar—a reglar—"

He hung open the door and went trudging as fast as his smarting feet could carry him up the steep and narrow steps, wherein the passing of other feet for many years had worn little hollows on either side.

Abraham limped from the couch to the door himself, and called after him:

"Sam! don't yew want tow sleep

by the fire? Yew seem a little softer than I be. Let me come upstairs."

There was no answer beyond the vicious slamming of Samuel's boots upon the floor above.

Abe raised his voice again, and now came in answer a roar of wrath from the cot next to Samuel's.

"Go to bed!" shouted No. 6, a burly, red-headed Irishman. "Go to bed wid yer! Th' young folks do be nadin' a little schlape!"

CHAPTER XVI.

"A Reglar Boss."

Abe flung himself back on his hard couch, drew the thick, gray blanket over him, and straightway fell into a deep, childlike slumber from which he was aroused by the rough but hearty inquiry:

"Say, Cap, like to have some oyster stew and a cup of coffee?"

Abe sat up, rubbing his eyes, wondering since when they had begun to serve oyster stew for breakfast on the beach; then he realized that he he had not overslept, and that it was not morning.

The clock was striking twelve, the midnight patrol was just going out, and the returning "runners" were bidding him partake of the food they had just prepared to cheer them after their cold tramp along the surf.

The old man whistled the small of the corpse, tempted, yet withheld by the thought of Abby's horror, and the horror of the twenty-nine sisters.

"Cap'n Abe—Clarence Haven, No. 5, with a big iron spoon tied around his bronzed neck, put him on his mettle, however—'Cap'n Abe, I tell yew, we wouldn't have waked no other fellow of yer age out of a sound sleep. Cap'n Darby, he could snooze till doomsday; but we knowed yew wouldn't want to miss no fun a-goin'."

"Cap'n Sam'l does show his years,"

Abe admitted. "Much obliged fer yew guys."

The woman burst into the local police station.

"My husband has been threatening to drown himself for some time," she cried, hysterically, "and he's been missing now for two days. I want you to have the river dragged."

Anything peculiar about him by which he can be recognized?" inquired the inspector.

The woman hesitated and seemed at a loss for a minute or two. Then a look of relief slowly overspread her face.

"Why, yes," she exclaimed at last;

"he's deaf."

Did I understand you to say your cook was named Wilhelm?

Yes. I gave her that name myself.

"In honor of Holland's queen?"

No. I merely list upon it because it's the feminine of Wilhelm. She's the darnest autocrat you ever saw."

"What is Professor Diggs doing

these days?"

"He is studying the causes which underlie revolutions."

"He is, eh? Well, I suspect he has a great deal to learn about such things. He got tangled up the other day in a revolving door."

"Mamma, have I any children?"

asked six-year-old Dorothy.

Of course not dear. What do you mean?

"Well, the preacher spoke in church this morning about children's children, and I wondered if I had any."

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty-one years old and I am so unhappy. I haven't any friends. I seem every one I meet has his own friends and I feel so alone. Sometimes I think I can't stand it much longer. I haven't a thing to look forward to. I have often wished that I had a friend, but I don't seem to have one. Please help me if you can.

VIRGINIA.
You are not alone in your loneliness. There have been many young men and women who have learned to be more self-reliant. Read and go to Red Cross meetings. If you attend church socials you can at least become acquainted with young people. Wait for them to take the initiative. Wait for them to have a little knitting party. The sooner you learn to be happy alone the better it will be for you. People should be expected to find close and lasting friends because that is an experience most of us are not fortunate enough to have.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Should I allow a boy to put his arm around the back of the seat when riding? (2) Is it all right for a girl to ask to ride with him? (3) Is it all right when you have a girl friend visiting you to ask some boy friends to call to see her?

JAGO AND SAGO.
(1) No, she should not.
(2) No, if the boy wants the girl to ride he will suggest it.
(3) Yes.

Observations of a War Horse

My Dear Niece:
Regina wants fear added to the list of contagious diseases, and those who are subject to it quarantined.

This wise little, gray little, in her early twenties is beginning to absorb wisdom as she used to absorb cigarette smoke, and she owes it all to her kindness and loyalty to her kind and her country.

"You will," I concluded. "I hope so," said Regina vigorously. "I sure don't want to be an old maid and die up. I can't get Ronald, I'm going to marry somebody else."

"Who?" I asked smilingly. "I haven't decided," said Regina. "I've only decided to suggest myself out of love with Ronald. Anna says I'm too young to get married. I don't know how to do it. I'm sure I can't get Ronald. I'm going to marry somebody else."

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

THE VAGOTONIC TYPE.

In health there is a perfect equilibrium between two physiologically antagonistic parts of the sympathetic nervous system (which presides over all unconscious functions). These two antagonistic systems are called the sympathetic and the vagus. The vagus or autonomic is the more remarkable when we consider how frequently it is temporarily upset in the exercise of ordinary physiological functions. The narrowing and widening of the pupil in bright and dull light, the watering of the mouth at the smell of savory food, the increased rapidity of heart beat under physical exertion and emotional excitement, the secretion of gastric juice under the stimulation of palatable food, the opening of the bile duct and flow of bile into the duodenum, the constriction of the chyme as it leaves the stomach, the transport of the contents of the colon through nearly the whole length of the colon in one vehement onward movement suddenly three or four times a day. These are all examples of sudden physiological overthrow of balance between the sympathetic and autonomic of vagus systems. Now suppose this perfect balance in some way becomes permanently disturbed a little. What happens?

Well, one effect of a disturbance of this balance when the autonomic of vagus portion happens to get the upper hand, is the development of vagotonia—a condition characteristic of too much vagus tone. A great many chronic adults are vagotonic. Why we don't know. In some way their mode of life is not well adjusted to environment; they do not live hygienically. In all respects the features of the vagotonic state may be of interest—especially if you happen to be a vagotonic yourself.

A woman of 28, some fifteen pounds underweight, has a very slow pulse (58 beats a minute, whereas 70 to 80 is normal), cold hands and cold feet, while, alluring eyes with small pupils (constrictor) would say "pupils are small," an excessive secretion of saliva, excessive localized sweating,

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) When a fellow goes out walking with his girl, must she be on the right side of him or the left? (2) Does it matter on which side of a fellow a girl walks when married? The boys often call "cabbage" when a girl walks on the proper way to walk with a girl. (3) Could you please explain this to me? If two girls pass by my friend and me, and say "Hello," and friend and me, the same thing when my friend knows the girls and I do not, should I speak to these girls if I pass them when alone.

(1) The girl should walk on the inside and the boy should take her arm only when crossing the street or if the walking is bad. The custom is the same whether the couple is married or not.

(2) You should not speak to the girls when alone.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please publish a solution for getting rid of blackheads?

A DAILY READER.
Have your face prepared two solutions. First—green soap, 1 1/4 ounces; alcohol, 8 1/4 drams; glycerine, 2 1/2 drams; borax, 1 1/4 drams. Second solution contains: rose water, 2 1/2 drams; spirit of lavender, 2 1/2 drams; alcohol, 2 1/4 ounces. Every morning wash the skin with the first solution and then with the second. Then wash with warm water.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Are they using hand embroidery on white skirts done in colors? No, it is not fashionable to embroider white skirts in colors.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: How can I entertain a young man who comes to see me who is very bashful?

ANXIOUS.
Read short stories of suggested length for a walk. It is sometimes difficult to make a boy talk if he is bashful, but you can try.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

Never have a tea or coffee spoon in your cup; always remove it to your saucer when through using. Your question has been answered before, but for your benefit I will say that while public elevators, especially in office buildings, are usually more like halls or stairways, and gentlemen are not called upon to remove their hats when there are ladies present, gentlemen will most always remove their hats unless they are engaged. In apartment buildings and hotels gentlemen should be very careful to show their courtesies.

Correspondent: A suitable birthday gift for your young lady friend would be either an appropriate book, flowers or an attractive box of candy, since these three different articles are all a young man may send to a girl unless she is engaged. A note to accompany the gift should be short with congratulations and good wishes for the day included.

Household Hints

MENU HINTS.
Soft Peaches or Uncooked Cereal. Thin Cream. Corn Muffins. Scrambled Eggs. Luncheon.

Potato Salad on Lettuce. Rye Bread and Butter Sandwiches. Corn on Cob. Iced Tea. Dinner.

Bean Souffle. Baked Bananas. Stuffed Potatoes. Okra and Tomatoes. Frozen Custard. Iced Tea. Wafters.

WHAT SAVERS.
Potato Drop Cakes—Two cups mashed potatoes, one-half cup oil, two cups corn syrup, two cups barley flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-half cup raisins, one-half cup sugar, one-half cup cinnamon, one-half cup raisins or nuts.

Mix all together except the flour and baking powder, which should be sifted and added last. Drop by spoonful on greased or floured tin. Bake in moderate oven.

Oatmeal Pie—Two cups soaked oatmeal, four apples cut up small, one-half cup raisins, one-half cup sugar, one quarter teaspoon cinnamon. Mix and bake one-half hour. Serve hot or cold. Any dried or fresh fruits dates or ground peanuts may be used instead of apples. Will serve five people.

Oatmeal Pie Crust—Two cups finely ground oatmeal, one cup boiling water, one tablespoon salt. Scale oatmeal with the water. Add fat and mix thoroughly. Roll very thin and line small pie or tart tins with mixture. Bake in hot oven.

Rice with Cheese and Tomatoes—Fry onion well, season with salt and mix well boiled rice with it. Use only enough sauce to moisten rice. Put this in a buttered dish and sprinkle with grated cheese. Mix cheese, rice and tomatoes. Sprinkle more cheese over the top and put a last layer of buttered bread crumbs over all. Brown lightly and serve hot. A very tasty dish.

Rice Griddle Cakes—Soak two cups rice in warm water over night. In the morning drain off any water that is left and add a well-beaten egg and two cups of sour milk. Then stir in enough sifted flour mixed with a teaspoon of soda. Drop by spoonful on hot griddle and brown on both sides. Serve with bacon or maple syrup.

TRY THESE.
Dry Cleaner—This is inexpensive and reliable; good for carpets, rugs and clothing.

Announcements.
Ether, one-half ounce. Alum, thirty grains. Salt, thirty grains. Soda, thirty grains.

This amount will cost 25 cents. Use the above recipe for cleaning dry materials, skirts, coats, etc. For rugs and carpets use four tablespoons to one gallon water, one bar soap.

This is very good and will be found useful now that housecleaning time is at hand. Rice Water—A good way to use rice water:

Boil rice in plenty of water. Drain over a bowl and not into the sink. Rice water contains more nourishment than the cooked cereal itself.

Set rice water aside for three hours and you have a jelly which will add value to your soup stock or may be boiled down still further, sweetened and flavored with lemon or vanilla and left in a cold place to form into mold. Eaten with sugar and cream it makes a fine dessert. Boiled into a custard, it is even better.

It can also be used for thickening white sauces or gravies.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Otorious Perpiration.
Kindly print in your department some application for perspiration which has an unpleasant odor. (G. E. H.)

ANSWER—Bathe and dry the part then sponge with a solution of one-half ounce of aluminum chloride in three ounces of distilled water, allowing it to remain on the skin for an alternate day for three or four times.

A Lady Finds We Are Right.
What I said of the Forest is true. I discarded mine about six months ago to see what would happen. Usually a woman will say, "I don't like to go to the forest." "Oh, I would fall all to pieces if I did so." But I didn't. Had a long loose fitting waist made to suit my skirts and elastic. Result: I have grown much smaller. About the abdomen, better. I feel much more comfortable. I look forward to the dog days without dread. You must be sure to return to the old splints.

ANSWER—Never can tell till you try, ladies. I shall never return to the Civil War. I shall remain as I am. They thought slavery was all right.

Sarcosis.
What is sarcosis? Its duration? Its cure? Is it contagious? (M. E. J. F.)

ANSWER—One type of cancer which occurs in any part of the body and is usually grows rapidly and is quickly fatal unless immediately attacked by operation. We call it sarcoma. It spreads, not by extending along the lymphatic channels to neighboring nodes, but by minute particles entering a blood stream and lodging in distant parts of the body to set up new growths. There is no proof that it is contagious. The cause of cancer is unknown.

Not in Pic.
Is there any objection to the use of rubber as food? (W. B.)

ANSWER—Objection has been made on the ground that it contains oxalic acid which cannot be utilized by the body. Practically, however, you may serve me a two hand slab of pieplant and I shall not fear of the offer being spurned.

SIDE TALKS

BY RUTH CAMERON

SPLIENNY OR PLUCKY?

Just the same, I think she is inclined to be splenny. If she would just forget about herself and make more of an effort, I feel sure she could do more than she does. The critic was one of those strong, capable, calm minded women who have inherited an excellent constitution and good nerves from a healthy parent and she was not a splenny woman. She was a nervous, high-strung, anaemic woman whose initially delicate constitution had been further enfeebled by an over strenuous career in child bearing and child rearing.

Her Critic May Have Been More Splenny Than She.
How could the one know what the other could do, or how she felt, or what handicaps she was under?

And yet, people of as widely differing temperaments, and in as widely different circumstances, are continually setting themselves as judges of what is possible to each other.

The body knows its own strength. There are some people who, in doing little, are yet making greater effort—showing finer spirit—than those who do five times as much.

One Person's Life Knows Whether You Are Trying or Not.
There is only one person who can judge just how hard each man or woman is trying to do his share and to make the most of what health and strength he has—and that is himself or herself.

Not long ago a woman whom I had always heard criticized by her relatives as "splenny," died. She had been for some years a semi-invalid, and she had tried to do her own housework and found herself unable to manage it. She had also done less and less of the church work in which she spent a considerable time on her couch. "She favors herself a great deal," I heard one of her critics say, significantly, only a few weeks before she died.

She Must Have Been Wonderfully Plucky.
After her death an autopsy was attended her. He found that she had been holding onto life for years only by a supreme effort of will. "It is perfectly wonderful to me," he said, "to think she was up and around most of the time. Ninety-nine women out of a hundred would have been bed ridden if they had been alive at all."

And yet those who should have been most tender of her had been criticizing her because she had "favored herself."

Such an experience makes one a little less quick to judge, doesn't it?

Uncle Eben.

"Poverty," said Uncle Eben, "ain't no disgrace, 'ceptin' when a man would rather put up wif it dan work."

The Daily Novelette

IN OLD NIPPON.
(Translated from the Japanese.)

Many blossoms ago, in the land of the cherry blossom and chrysanthemum, there lived an honorable baron, old and with riches, who a maiden young, gentle, obedient and beautiful he desired to wife.

To the north and south, to the east and west, the baron of Japan had sent his four servants, but none such could he find. Many maidens there were with three of these virtues, but bisect with all of them none could be found.

One day, about the time of the new birth of the sun, the honorable baron, Kamakori, commanded his four servants to sit down in a certain garden where the geishas were dancing. After throwing a yen or two among them, the honorable Kamakori started to turn away, when the geisha with a beautiful face and form, attracted his honorable attention.

Calling her to him, the illustrious Kamakori asked her three questions. "Are you young?"

"I am, Most Gifted of the Highest Star!" replied the maiden.

"Are you gentle?"

"A cooing dove could not be more so, Oh, Honored of the Heavens!" she answered.

"Are you obedient?"

"Have I not answered your questions, oh, More Blessed to Give Than to Receive?" she asked.

"Thou hast. And too, art thou beautiful, oh prettiest geisha, and of representing the four winds of the heavens, the four corners of the earth and the four million characters in our alphabet?" enthusiastically cried Kamakori.

"Ah, but the best is yet to come, oh Light of the Moon. I have a voice that has been likened unto the notes of the silver-throated, kin-yo-gin. Hear!" said the maid.

"Same-se-ee-ko-ke-ee-ee-ek!" She warbled, like hop-sticks clacking in chop-uey.

"Mikado!" shouted the Baron. "By the Great seven-tongued Dragon! Enough! Away!" And he clapped his hands, and his four servants threw the maiden into the lake.

So the Honorable Baron Kamakori wedded the water-carrier's daughter in the next street who had none of the four virtues. And he and she and their relatives feasted on jiu-jitsu rice and tea. The water-carrier's daughter broke the ten-cups up so they could never use them again.

Moral: Sometimes, it happens, that the little dandelion in the back yard throws a greater perfume than the bright, red rose in thy front garden.

Sales of the Friendly Forest

You remember in the last story how Willie Wind whispered to Billy Bunny and Uncle Lucky that their cousin, Mr. O'Hare, had fallen into a deep hole. Well, it didn't take the two little rabbits more than five and a half hops to reach the spot, and then they looked over the edge, but very carefully you know, for fear they might fall in, and there, sure enough, lay down in the bottom was Mr. O'Hare looking very miserable indeed.

"Keep up your courage!" cried Uncle Lucky in as cheerful a voice as he could muster, and then he looked around to find a rope or a ladder. But of course there were not any ropes and ladders lying about, so that was out of the question. "Keep up your courage! We'll get you out!" although he didn't know how he was going to do it, and neither do you and neither do I and neither does the printer man.

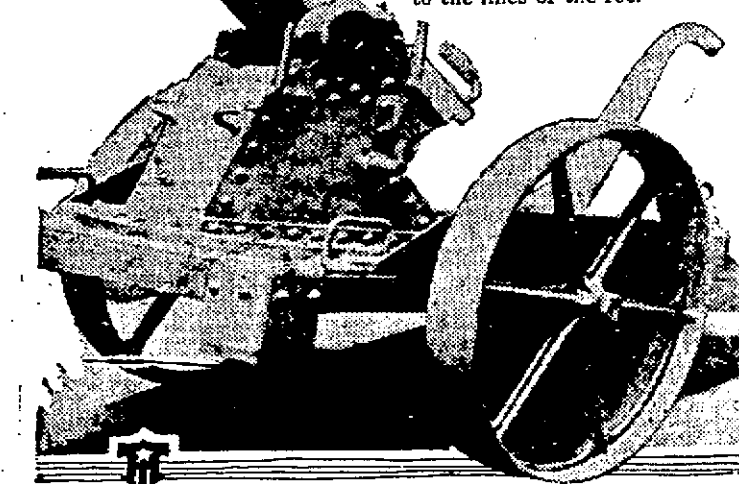

Well, after a while, and it was quite a long while, too, Billy Bunny found a grapevine which he let down into the hole, and called down again, "Keep up your courage! We'll get you out!" although he didn't know how he was going to do it, and neither do you and neither do I and neither does the printer man.

And yet those who should have been most tender of her had been criticizing her because she had "favored herself."

The Big Store Will Be Closed All Day Tomorrow, Memorial Day

ON this sacred day we honor the patriots who died to keep this country free.

Today ten million more stand ready to still keep this country the Land of the Free, so that those whose memories we pay homage to will not have died in vain.

So on this Memorial Day, even though our hearts are heavy, let us keep up the good fight, and renew our pledges, to those who have died, to our fair country and to ourselves, and help keep the world free from those destroying monsters who seek to put us once again in bondage.
